THE GANTZ WORLD REALLY EXISTS!

GANTZ special full coverage feature!

GANTZ why and what?

"It could be right next door in plain daylight without you even knowing it."

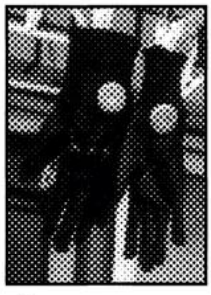
That type of disquieting and incomprehensible atmosphere permeates Gantz. You may think it's only fiction, but . . . !

The photo on the left shows the veranda of a normal apartment in K Ward of Yokohama.

Take a close look at the laundry drying outside. There's no doubt that it's a Gantz suit just sitting out like it was a normal outfit! It may be hard to believe, but the world of Gantz just might be real!

The apartment in question. We swear it's not the apartment of Oku-sensei or the editorial staff.

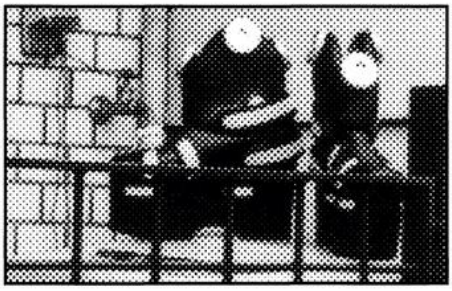
Gantz suit drying outside the apartment. Looks like it doesn't need to be dried in the shade.



There were newspapers stuffed inside the boots.

If you look again, you'll see boots above the suit. Perhaps the last mission took place in the rain and they needed drying.

We tried to confirm this with the tenant by going right up to the front door and ringing the bell, but no one answered. We tried hanging out for them, but the neighbors got suspicious, and we were forced to give up for now.



One-Line Column #1 In order to squeeze more money for production costs, we experimented with placing advertisements throughout the work, but there's still a lack of funds.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY! KITTY KAT RICE CAKES!

This character was created by master artist Hiroya Oku utilizing his full skills, and he's totally ready to give out merchandising rights in return for money to produce Gantz. However, a market survey turned up an existing product called Nyan Nyan Nyanko, showing the fierce competition faced by those looking to enter the cat-themed-product market. All offers, whether they be from large companies or small family-owned businesses, are being considered.

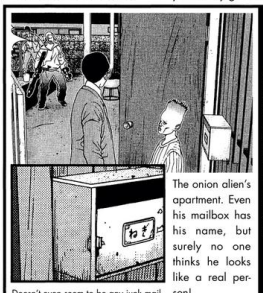
MEALS AT THE KATO HOUSEHOLD

Kato's aunt. A good lesson in How difficult the world can be.

Kato and his brother have lost their parents and now live with the family of their mom's sister. Kato is tall because he adheres to a simple diet of "one soup, one vegetable" (according to Hiroya Oku). Kato does his own cooking, but supposedly isn't very good at it.



DID THE ONION ALIEN PAY A DEPOSIT ON HIS APARTMENT? WHAT TYPE OF LEASE DOES HE HAVE?

The onion alien's apartment. Even his mailbox has his name, but surely no one thinks he looks like a real person!

Doesn't even seem to be any junk mail.

HOW DO THEY GET THEIR ONIONS?

The old man onion had a shopping bag in his hand when he came home. But there's no way he could be mistaken for a normal person. One might assume that he steals them instead of regular shopping.

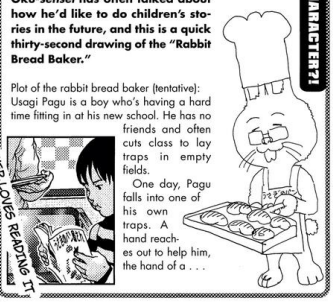
NEW CHARACTER?!

THE RABBIT BREAD BAKER

Oku-sensei has often talked about how he'd like to do children's stories in the future, and this is a quick thirty-second drawing of the "Rabbit Bread Baker."

Plot of the rabbit bread baker (tentative): Usagi Pagu is a boy who's having a hard time fitting in at his new school. He has no friends and often cuts class to lay traps in empty fields.

One day, Pagu falls into one of his own traps. A hand reaches out to help him, the hand of a . . .

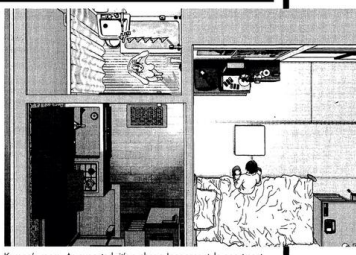


There are a lot of mysteries surrounding Gantz and the aliens, but many things about our protagonist Kei Kurono are unclear as well. One especially curious mystery is why he lives by himself in the Hibari-so apartments even though he's only in high school. It's even stranger because in a flashback scene (in chapter 14), we see a brick apartment building where supposedly his family lives a normal life.

A PEEK AT THE KURONO HOUSEHOLD

Kurono seems quicker on his feet than Kato. Perhaps he goes to a famous school and there are no other schools of the same level where his family moved.

THEORY 1: KURONO GOES TO A FAMOUS SCHOOL

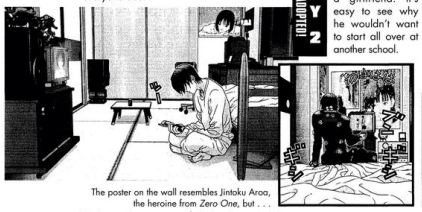


Kurono's room. As expected, it's a cheap Japanese-style apartment.

When Kurono calls his mother, she starts right off with "is this about money?" and then hangs up (chapter 22). This doesn't seem like a warm, loving family. Maybe he's actually adopted and they're making him live separately from everyone else.

THEORY 2: HE'S ACTUALLY ADOPTED!

He doesn't participate in clubs, seems dissatisfied with school life, and doesn't have any friends or even a girlfriend. It's easy to see why he wouldn't want to start all over at another school.



The poster on the wall resembles Jintoku Aroa, the heroine from Zero One, but . . .

AS A COMPARISON, THIS IS THE GANTZ APARTMENT.
It's best to just assume that it's using some empty apartment without permission. It's big.

It is possible to think of some combination of 1 and 2, so we talked to Oku-sensei to try to find the truth.

"I think he was only able to get into a school that was really far from his home. It is true that he doesn't have a good relationship with his family. There's a boy with brown hair in the cell above who's taller than Kurono. It's his younger brother."

(Hiroya Oku)

One-line Column #2 He really has no more savings because he spent all the money he made on a computer.

MOMO AYUKAWA SPECIAL

Kurono is reading Young Jump in the first chapter. The color cover of this issue is graced by Momo Ayukawa (18). "How popular is she? I haven't thought about it. Probably enough to make the cover but not enough to make regular appearances on TV."

(Hiroya Oku)

Either way, we look forward to great things from this idol in the future.

Actually, it doesn't look like he's reading the YJ too seriously.

FIRST TIME EVER! THE COVER OF THE YOUNG JUMP READ BY KURONO.

This issue sold 20,000 more copies than usual.

EXCITING LIFE ♥ THIS WEEK'S YOUNGER SISTER

"My sister's the over-achiever, so I can just sit back and do nothing. But it's hard for her. Our parents focused their entire expectations on her, and it drove her to try suicide. We didn't get along very well before then, but I started to feel sorry for her. Maybe it was all for the good because it helped bring our family together."

KISHIMOTO SHIORI (15)

IKEBUKURO VERSION

One-Line Column #3 Oku-sensei really hates cat ears. There was even talk of making an alien with cat ears that would be killed right out of the gate.
